

Ebay.co.uk Bans Colloidal Silver

Contributed by Simon Brown
Monday, 09 August 2004
Last Updated Monday, 05 February 2007

It appears that Ebay UK has decided to ban all Colloidal Silver related products on their website.

After having my Colloidal Silver removed from Ebay.co.uk, I wrote to them asking the reason why it had been removed. After all I had been listing Colloidal Silver on Ebay for the last two years without any problems.

The category they banned it under the category of 'Drugs'. I promptly wrote to them to explain that this wasn't and never has been a drug. Here is their reply:

Hello Simon,

Thank you for your email. My name is Adam and I'm sorry to hear about your recently removed listings.

I have looked into this matter for you and can see that this listing was in violation of our eBay policy and as a result had to be removed from the site. I have reviewed this issue for you again and am sorry to confirm that the items in question have been removed correctly.

Colloidal Silver is no longer allowed to be listed on the UK site, and these items are being removed under our Prohibited and Restricted Items policy. Please be aware that this ban extends to information relating to the product or anything that can help to produce it.

So there you go, it's official, the powers that be are doing everything in their power to stop Colloidal Silver being sold.

Even Ebay seem to be following the band wagon.

{moscomment}